CHAMPION EXPOSITION SERVICES EXPANDS MEDICAL CLIENT PORTFOLIO WITH NEW CONTRACT WINS

American College of Medical Genetics (ACMG) and America Occupational Therapy Association (AOTA) Select Champion as Official General Service Contractor

MIDDLEBORO, MA, December 18, 2008 – Champion Exposition Services (“Champion”), a leading provider of comprehensive event solutions and exposition services, today announced that the company has expanded its medical client portfolio with two new association wins. The American College of Medical Genetics (ACMG) and America Occupational Therapy Association (AOTA) have both chosen Champion as the official general service contractor for their 2009, 2010 and 2011 annual meetings and conferences.

“When searching for a general service contractor, it became clear that we needed a partner with the same forward-thinking attitude that ACMG and JRDaggett & Associates (ACMG’s meeting and exhibition management partner) pride themselves on having. With their innovative technology and superior client services, Champion proved to be the ideal choice to help us take our annual meetings to the next level,” said Jane Dahlroth, CEM, CMP, Chief Operating Officer, JRDaggett & Associates. “Both ACMG and JRDaggett & Associates are looking forward to this exciting partnership, and hosting a meeting unlike any we’ve had before.”

Champion will provide exposition services for the 2009, 2010 and 2011 ACMG Annual Clinical Genetics Meeting. The 2009 ACMG Annual Clinical Genetics Meeting is scheduled to take place March 25-29, 2009 at the Tampa Convention Center in Tampa Bay, Florida. The 2010 ACMG Annual Clinical Genetics Meeting will occur March 24-28, 2010 at Albuquerque Convention Center in Albuquerque New Mexico and the 2011 ACMG Annual Clinical Genetics Meeting is slated for March 16-20, 2011 at the Vancouver Convention & Exhibition Center in Vancouver, British Columbia.

“We’re confident that Champion will provide the upcoming AOTA Annual Conference and Expos with the same progressive thinking and exceptional services they’re known for throughout the industry. Champion’s history of successful medical shows, coupled with their industry-renowned client services made them the clear choice as our general service contractor,” said Frederick P. Somers, Executive Director of AOTA. “The American Occupational Therapy Association and everyone involved with the conference is excited to partner with an innovative, full-service contractor of Champion’s pedigree.”

Champion will serve as the general service contractor for AOTA’s 2009 Annual Conference and Expo, which will take place April 23-26, 2009 at the George R. Brown Convention Center in Houston, TX. Champion will also provide its industry-leading services for AOTA’s 2010 Annual Conference and Expo, scheduled for April 29-May 2, 2010 in Orlando, Florida and 2011 Annual Conference and Expo, whose date and location is to be determined.
